

Gideon Jude is an Accreditation expert in Girne American University (GAU) and serves as an Academic Reviewer for the European Council of Business Education (ECBE). Aside his accreditation duties in GAU, he is responsible for the initiation and supervision of International partnerships/collaborations of the university.

His keen interest in International affairs drives him to obtain a master degree in International Relations (MSc- thesis: "Reasons For The lack of Supranationalism in Africa; A comparative study on African Union and European Union") after his undergraduate degree in Law. He is currently pursuing a PhD in Political Science and International Studies.

The penchant to contribute to educational excellence and inventive learning spurs him to becoming a lecturer at the Law Faculty of Girne American University with a class size of more than 50 students from different countries around the world.
